

Shoulder Reference Centre in South Manchester

Chris Peach, MBBS, MD, FRCS (Tr & Orth)
Consultant Elbow and Shoulder Surgeon
University Hospital of South Manchester

About Mr. Peach

Mr. Peach is a Consultant Orthopaedic Surgeon who specialises in treating disorders of the shoulder and the elbow and traumatic injuries of the entire upper limb. He uses the Subcapularis Sparing Approach for anatomical total shoulder replacement surgery.

Mr. Peach graduated from Imperial College School of Medicine and trained as an Orthopaedic Surgeon in London, Oxford and the North West. He spent two years undertaking a post-graduate research degree at the University of Oxford, having been awarded the Royal College of Surgeons of England Research Fellowship and examined the genetic basis of osteoarthritis in the shoulder identifying a novel gene defect in influencing crystal deposition.

Mr. Peach trained as a fellow in the Upper Limb Unit at Wrightington Hospital under Mr. Ian Trail, Mr. Len Funk and Mr. John Haines. He was awarded the Sheffield Shoulder and Elbow Fellowship and trained at the internationally recognised Northern General Hospital Upper Limb Unit with Mr. David Stanley and Mr. David Potter. He has spent time at the Mayo Clinic in the United States, in recognition of his interests in elbow surgery, to work with Dr. Shawn O'Driscoll. In 2013, he was awarded the British Elbow and Shoulder Society's coveted North American Elbow Fellowship to further develop his experience in complex elbow surgery in the United States working with other leaders in the field. More recently, he has been awarded the prestigious Stephen Copeland Memorial Travelling Fellowship by the British Elbow and Shoulder Society (BESS) which he shall spend in South Africa in October 2016.

His research interests currently focus on the management of infection in elbow arthroplasty, development of a subject specific finite element model of shoulder movement and towards the development of new bioresorbable materials for use in orthopaedic trauma.
